Disclaimer

This course does not give specific medical advice to individuals. The content provides information only. Each person should seek individual medical advice, diagnosis, and/or treatment by a physician who can examine you and take your medical history. See the course content for tips about seeking medical care.

Data collection

This course will start with a 28-item scale called the "Brief COPE." It is a widely used scale to assess people's coping. This course will end with the same scale. At this point, there is no live link to the questionnaire, so that you will have to numerically add up your own score if you want a total score. Because we will not see any of the data from this questionnaire, there is no need for you to give us permission ("consent") to retain this data. In the future, when the questionnaire is posted by a web link, then we will ask whether you give us consent to retain the data.
